

MRS. SALLADE AT THE HEAD.

WEST 217TH STREET PROPERTY OWNERS RESOLVE TO CLEAN UP.

The leaders of the crusade encountered Mrs. T. Cox, who lives across the street from her, and both ladies say things. Mrs. Mary F. Sallade, the elderly woman who has done the role of Hercules for the cleaning of Avenue New York, was at the meeting called yesterday by the neighbors who are in favor of her work, and also of some of the neighbors who are "agin" her. These two branches came together, and some hard things were said, but a careful consideration of the proceedings will show that Mrs. Sallade had a better right.

The meeting properly has been called an indignation meeting, for there was a great deal of indignation on both sides. On the side of the opposition it resided mostly in the bosom of Mrs. T. Cox, who keeps a boarding house just opposite Mrs. Sallade's house, and it boiled and bubbled threateningly, only relieved by the occasional salve of Mrs. Cox's own tongue. Mrs. Cox spoke just as often as they'd let her.

The meeting was in the rooms of Thorp & Knowles, architects, at 21 West Twenty-fourth street. There were in all about forty persons present, of whom six were women and twelve reporters. Dr. Jacob L. Kennedy of 35 West Twenty-fourth street, was the man in the chair, and Mr. Thorp was secretary. Among others were: W. H. Ketcham, a dealer in fine art, of 19 West Twenty-fourth street; H. W. Leonard of 17, Mrs. Isabella Baldwin of 44, Mrs. S. E. Walton of 47, Mrs. Frances Humbert of 46, W. H. Tobin, representative of the owners of the property, and a respectable tenant who lives in a representative of Meyer Bros. & Co., booksellers, of 13; a representative of E. P. Dutton & Co., publishers, of 10, and Emanuel L. S. Hart, who represented two property owners.

Mrs. Sallade, who brought the whole thing about, sat at the side, with her back to the door, and her feet on a stool. She was in the proceedings, as it turned out, not near her own side of the street. There were two persons between them, and it might have been exciting had there not been, because from the very first Mrs. Cox looked at Mrs. Sallade as if challenging her to combat, and Mrs. Sallade looked at Mrs. Cox as if she were a match for her. Mrs. Cox was the most potent force of the opposition, and she was on an expedition of pain. In return Mrs. Cox whistled very loudly to Mrs. Walton her cousin of Mrs. Sallade.

The men seemed to be with Mrs. Sallade. Before the proceedings began they congratulated her upon the work she had done, and told her they would help her. The meeting proper began when Mrs. Sallade said that she had been a property owner and lessee in the street, and she regretted that they could not be present. Then she said that she had been a property owner and lessee in the street, and she regretted that they could not be present. Then she said that she had been a property owner and lessee in the street, and she regretted that they could not be present.

Then Mrs. Hart, representing one of the places Mrs. Tobin called hell holes, got up and admitted that she had been a property owner and lessee in the street, and she regretted that they could not be present. Then she said that she had been a property owner and lessee in the street, and she regretted that they could not be present. Then she said that she had been a property owner and lessee in the street, and she regretted that they could not be present.

Then Mrs. Hart, representing one of the places Mrs. Tobin called hell holes, got up and admitted that she had been a property owner and lessee in the street, and she regretted that they could not be present. Then she said that she had been a property owner and lessee in the street, and she regretted that they could not be present. Then she said that she had been a property owner and lessee in the street, and she regretted that they could not be present.

Then Mrs. Hart, representing one of the places Mrs. Tobin called hell holes, got up and admitted that she had been a property owner and lessee in the street, and she regretted that they could not be present. Then she said that she had been a property owner and lessee in the street, and she regretted that they could not be present. Then she said that she had been a property owner and lessee in the street, and she regretted that they could not be present.

Then Mrs. Hart, representing one of the places Mrs. Tobin called hell holes, got up and admitted that she had been a property owner and lessee in the street, and she regretted that they could not be present. Then she said that she had been a property owner and lessee in the street, and she regretted that they could not be present. Then she said that she had been a property owner and lessee in the street, and she regretted that they could not be present.

WONDERFUL PROJECTILES.

THEY PROVE THAT WE MAKE THE BEST SHELLS ON EARTH.

Tested Yesterday at the Naval Proving Ground, Two Carpenter Projectiles Penetrated a 15-Inch Nickel-Steel Armor and 40 Inches of Oak Without Injury.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—The superiority of our naval projectiles over any others manufactured in the world is being proved in the most convincing manner. Yesterday, at the Naval Proving Ground, two Carpenter projectiles penetrated a 15-inch nickel-steel armor and 40 inches of oak without injury.

The projectiles were fired from a 10-inch gun, and they penetrated the armor and oak without injury. The projectiles were fired from a 10-inch gun, and they penetrated the armor and oak without injury. The projectiles were fired from a 10-inch gun, and they penetrated the armor and oak without injury.

The projectiles were fired from a 10-inch gun, and they penetrated the armor and oak without injury. The projectiles were fired from a 10-inch gun, and they penetrated the armor and oak without injury. The projectiles were fired from a 10-inch gun, and they penetrated the armor and oak without injury.

The projectiles were fired from a 10-inch gun, and they penetrated the armor and oak without injury. The projectiles were fired from a 10-inch gun, and they penetrated the armor and oak without injury. The projectiles were fired from a 10-inch gun, and they penetrated the armor and oak without injury.

The projectiles were fired from a 10-inch gun, and they penetrated the armor and oak without injury. The projectiles were fired from a 10-inch gun, and they penetrated the armor and oak without injury. The projectiles were fired from a 10-inch gun, and they penetrated the armor and oak without injury.

The projectiles were fired from a 10-inch gun, and they penetrated the armor and oak without injury. The projectiles were fired from a 10-inch gun, and they penetrated the armor and oak without injury. The projectiles were fired from a 10-inch gun, and they penetrated the armor and oak without injury.

The projectiles were fired from a 10-inch gun, and they penetrated the armor and oak without injury. The projectiles were fired from a 10-inch gun, and they penetrated the armor and oak without injury. The projectiles were fired from a 10-inch gun, and they penetrated the armor and oak without injury.

The projectiles were fired from a 10-inch gun, and they penetrated the armor and oak without injury. The projectiles were fired from a 10-inch gun, and they penetrated the armor and oak without injury. The projectiles were fired from a 10-inch gun, and they penetrated the armor and oak without injury.

JAPAN CLAIMS A VICTORY.

She Says the Honors of the Naval Fight on Aug. 11 Are Hers.

LONDON, Aug. 14.—A despatch from Yokohama says that in the engagement between the Japanese and Chinese fleets on Aug. 11 the Japanese were victorious.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 14.—Chinese land lines to Korea are totally interrupted. There seems to be no prospect of restoration. The cable route via Nagasaki, beyond Fusan, is also interrupted. With the single exception of Fusan, Korea is cut off from all telegraphic communication.

The Japanese fleet, under the command of Admiral Togo, defeated the Chinese fleet, under the command of Admiral Ding, in the battle of the Yellow Sea on August 11, 1894.

The Japanese fleet, under the command of Admiral Togo, defeated the Chinese fleet, under the command of Admiral Ding, in the battle of the Yellow Sea on August 11, 1894.

The Japanese fleet, under the command of Admiral Togo, defeated the Chinese fleet, under the command of Admiral Ding, in the battle of the Yellow Sea on August 11, 1894.

The Japanese fleet, under the command of Admiral Togo, defeated the Chinese fleet, under the command of Admiral Ding, in the battle of the Yellow Sea on August 11, 1894.

The Japanese fleet, under the command of Admiral Togo, defeated the Chinese fleet, under the command of Admiral Ding, in the battle of the Yellow Sea on August 11, 1894.

The Japanese fleet, under the command of Admiral Togo, defeated the Chinese fleet, under the command of Admiral Ding, in the battle of the Yellow Sea on August 11, 1894.

The Japanese fleet, under the command of Admiral Togo, defeated the Chinese fleet, under the command of Admiral Ding, in the battle of the Yellow Sea on August 11, 1894.

DEFERRED IN THE LORDS.

THE EVICTED TENANTS BILL FAILS TO PASS THE SECOND READING.

239 Peers Against Thwarted the Will of the House of Commons—Only Thirty Votes for the Bill—Lord Salisbury's Motion Remains and Rosbery's Reply to Him.

LONDON, Aug. 14.—The Duke of Devonshire spoke at length in the House of Lords on the Evicted Tenants Bill. He based his opposition on the ground that the Government was not justified in making the reinstatement of tenants compulsory.

The Duke said that the Unionists would have met the Government halfway if they had seen any basis of compromise. He said that the Government was not justified in making the reinstatement of tenants compulsory.

The Duke said that the Unionists would have met the Government halfway if they had seen any basis of compromise. He said that the Government was not justified in making the reinstatement of tenants compulsory.

The Duke said that the Unionists would have met the Government halfway if they had seen any basis of compromise. He said that the Government was not justified in making the reinstatement of tenants compulsory.

The Duke said that the Unionists would have met the Government halfway if they had seen any basis of compromise. He said that the Government was not justified in making the reinstatement of tenants compulsory.

The Duke said that the Unionists would have met the Government halfway if they had seen any basis of compromise. He said that the Government was not justified in making the reinstatement of tenants compulsory.

The Duke said that the Unionists would have met the Government halfway if they had seen any basis of compromise. He said that the Government was not justified in making the reinstatement of tenants compulsory.

The Duke said that the Unionists would have met the Government halfway if they had seen any basis of compromise. He said that the Government was not justified in making the reinstatement of tenants compulsory.

SHOT HIMSELF NEAR HIS CLUB.

W. Bette Lawrence Carried Into the Century Club House Dying.

At 12:30 o'clock this morning a man attempted suicide by shooting himself in the head on the sidewalk near the Century Club house at 7 West Forty-third street. He fell to the sidewalk immediately in front of the entrance of the Academy of Medicine.

He was there on the sidewalk at the foot of the steps for some time before he was discovered, although the report of the revolver was heard all over the neighborhood. It was found that the man was W. Bette Lawrence, a member of the Century Club.

Finally a doctor was found. He examined the wound, and did not think it was mortal. The man had shot himself in the right temple, but the bullet did not penetrate the skull.

Later the Roosevelt Hospital was called on to send an ambulance to the house of the Century Club. The ambulance arrived at the Century Club house, and the man was carried into the hospital.

At the club house information about the man's identity was denied to the reporters. A policeman who arrived with the ambulance and kept there. At the door it was said that the man was W. Bette Lawrence, a member of the Century Club.

Dr. Van Hek of 23 West Forty-third street said that he could not live more than six hours. He and Dr. Bennett of 20 West Forty-third street attended Mr. Lawrence.

At the club house information about the man's identity was denied to the reporters. A policeman who arrived with the ambulance and kept there. At the door it was said that the man was W. Bette Lawrence, a member of the Century Club.

At the club house information about the man's identity was denied to the reporters. A policeman who arrived with the ambulance and kept there. At the door it was said that the man was W. Bette Lawrence, a member of the Century Club.

At the club house information about the man's identity was denied to the reporters. A policeman who arrived with the ambulance and kept there. At the door it was said that the man was W. Bette Lawrence, a member of the Century Club.

ALL EYES ON CLEVELAND.

WATCHING TO SEE WHAT HE WILL DO WITH THE TARIFF BILL.

A Cabinet Member Says the President Will Sign It—House Democrats Declare He Will Let It Become a Law Without His Signature—Some Think He Will Veto It.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—In the great hall of the House of Representatives today there were no visible signs of yesterday's tariff battle in which Clevelandism went down in the humiliating surrender of the Democratic party to Populism and protectionism. Speaker Crisp, who led the grand retreat, was in his private room, cool and self-possessed, as usual, and in the chamber a hush reigned over the events of yesterday and discussing what little is left of the tariff situation. Nearly all of the Representatives who were at the Capitol called upon the Speaker, and when asked afterward for their opinion as to whether President Cleveland would sign or veto the tariff compromise bill, they all said, with slight variations of the word, that the President would either veto the bill or allow it to become a law without his signature, and that a most determined effort would be made in the Senate to pass some, if not all, of the four pop-gun measures attached as consolation prizes to the tail of the Gorman compromise.

It is evidently the purpose of the Speaker and his friends in the House to keep up this show of sincerity until compelled to abandon it by force of circumstances. It is somewhat remarkable that every House Democrat who has been asked today whether the President is confident to-day that the President will let Congress pass for the ten days allowed him by the Constitution for the consideration of the tariff bill, and that during that time the divided factions of the Democratic party will all come together and work in harmony for the passage of the bill, should answer in the affirmative. The answer is plainly the result of an understanding between the Speaker and his friends to hoodwink the public and create the impression that they acted in sincerity, and not in a spirit of pure bonum when they voted yesterday in favor of a bill to put a protective duty on sugar, coal, iron, and other commodities, by having the bill making the President's signature a mere formality, and thus to prevent a free vote. The very well that these bills will not even become the subject of serious consideration in the Senate, and it is quite likely that they know also that President Cleveland will in a day or two swallow the Gorman compromise bill as they swallowed yesterday's tariff bill, and send it back to the House with his signature.

A member of Mr. Cleveland's Cabinet said today that the President would sign the Gorman bill, and in the opinion of the best Democrats in Washington there is no reason on earth why he should not do so. To allow it to become a law without his signature would be as much of a surrender as to allow it to become a law without his signature. It is a "disloyal and perfidious" to his party in the House of Representatives, as disgraceful as that of which he so rashly and unfortunately accused the Senators who framed the bill. Moreover, there is every reason to believe that the programme of compromise and surrender carried out by the President in the House yesterday, and which was mapped out by the Speaker last Saturday morning after he and the House conferees had talked with Mr. Cleveland, was conceived and carried out with the approval of the President. The President's signature would be a mere formality, and thus to prevent a free vote.

There will probably be no evolutions now. Despite the fact that about eight hundred new men are at work in the shops all the old hands, with the exception of 100, will be taken back. Some of the new men are efficient car builders, but the majority would have to learn practically a new trade. The President's signature would be a mere formality, and thus to prevent a free vote.

The men gathered about the big gate today were inclined to complain against their leaders. The whole Pullman plant, foundry, freight, and repair departments, will be running in full blast before the end of the week.

The men gathered about the big gate today were inclined to complain against their leaders. The whole Pullman plant, foundry, freight, and repair departments, will be running in full blast before the end of the week.

The men gathered about the big gate today were inclined to complain against their leaders. The whole Pullman plant, foundry, freight, and repair departments, will be running in full blast before the end of the week.

The men gathered about the big gate today were inclined to complain against their leaders. The whole Pullman plant, foundry, freight, and repair departments, will be running in full blast before the end of the week.

THE WEATHER PREDICTION.

For New York and Its Vicinity:

Showers; cooler; south winds, becoming westerly.

Showers; cooler; south winds, becoming westerly.

Showers; cooler; south winds, becoming westerly.

Showers; cooler; south winds, becoming westerly.

Showers; cooler; south winds, becoming westerly.

Showers; cooler; south winds, becoming westerly.

Showers; cooler; south winds, becoming westerly.

Showers; cooler; south winds, becoming westerly.

Showers; cooler; south winds, becoming westerly.